“The world has yet to see what God can do with a man fully consecrated to Him” These words, spoken to D.L. Moody by a fellow evangelist, fired his imagination and gave him a vision for living all-out to the glory of God.

Plunged into a world of darkness, John was deserted by wife and children, left to face the future alone. God reached down and lifted John from the depths of despair to fulfil his father’s dream that he should become a preacher of the Gospel.

Becoming a Christian does not guarantee someone a happy family. Christian homes are sometimes broken; the children sometimes become rebellious and cause great heartaches. But the Fremonts, through decades of helping troubled families find happiness, have given us their formula – it is simply what they have found in the Bible. And it works.

Why do good people seem to suffer so much?

Why does it sometimes seem that they suffer more than the unrighteous?

Is pain part of some immutable law of universe?

Does it serve any good purpose?

How can a good God allow it?

For many of the persons presented in this volume, conversion was only the beginning of many years of dedicated Christian service. The focus of Forty Fascinating Conversion Stories, however, is upon the actual circumstances and decisions that resulted in a changed heart.
